The great trouble about "In Dahomey" at the New York Theatre last night was hat one could not see the forest because of the trees; the laughter was so incessant, so noisy that it often drowned the voices of the actors and actresses of the Williams Walker company.

It is a ridiculously funny show. "In Dahomey" is the product of two talented men of African descent, men whose cranial sutures have not yet begun to close. They are Paul Dunbar, who wrote the lyrics, and Will Marion Cook, the composer. J. A. Shipp furnished the book. The latter also presented an excellent burlesque character.

Williams and Walker have congenial rôles; the big melancholy "Bert" is again the peesimist to whom falls all the work. all the misfortunes; little George is the optimist who improves each shining hour robs his friend at every turn. Williams made the hit of the evening in "The Jonah made the hit of the evening in "The Jonah Man," which sent a huge audience into hysterics. "Mollie Green" in the first act went very well, as did the male quartets, in which the colored race are without rivals. Mr. Cook's music is rhythmically catching, his melodies have swing and he knows how to write for the orchestra. He conducted last night like a veteran.

Occasionally the story of the play emerged from an ocean of two-step marches—one sung by Walker made a sensation, "When Sousa Comes to Contown"—brass bands, Salvation armies, fights, (hinamen, white folks and a mell'e of exciting incidents. The tale deals with three swindlers who gather in a lot of guillible colored people and take them to Dahomey. Williams and Walker are detectives. It is hardly necessary to add that their detection of matters not appertaining to the piece is absurd.

It is Walker danced gracefully and gave absurd.

51 ia Walker danced gracefully and gave one of her serio-comic acts. The company is adequate, the entertainment varied. Toward midnight the play had not ended, though the audience was laughing as if for a wager. "In Dahomey" is health cure in three acts.

MME. NORDICA'S MARGUERITE. A Performance of "Faust" Made Unusually Interesting.

The performance of Gounod's "Faust" which took place at the Metropolitan Opera House last night was interesting. This statement is sufficient to indicate that the performance had unfamiliar features, for as usually presented here Gounod's popular work is interesting only to persons who find novelty in the mere experience of being in the opera house. It was Mme. Nordica who infused new life into the old opera last night, and she did it by a very simple process. She declined to travel creakily along the rusty tramway of convention, but departing from that wayworn route and making excursions into the adjoining territory of innovation, she offered to the audience an impersonation which had a dramatic purpose. Mme. Nordica did not rely on pure beauty of singing for her success as Marquerite. She set out to make a careful dramatic development of the rôle, showing the expansion of the character from that of an imaginative, ardent, yet simpleminded girl to that of a sorrow-stricken woman. To the eye she presented this in woman. To the eye she presented this in intelligently designed action; to the ear, in a beautifully planned and excellently strected vocal treatment of the music. That Mme. Nordica is neither young enough nor slender enough to present a perfect picture of the girl cannot be denied, but she dressed herself with extraordinary skill and carried illusion a long way. She devised poses and gestures with a fine sense of proportion, and she filled the part with new and significant stage business, some of which—as in the garden the part with new and significant stage business, some of which—as in the garden scene—called for new action and groupings among all the other characters. In almost every case the results were admirable; in some they were perhaps questionable; in some they were perhaps questionable; in none were they palpably unfortunate.

Her vocal treatment of the part was obvious, yet to be carried out with success only by an experienced artist. She began her singing in demi-voice and in a cold tone. She maintained that style till she reached the love duet with Faust in the garden scene, and then she abandoned the demi-voice, used chest tones and a warm color. The effect was admirable, but only a mistress of the art of singing could have got it. In the church scene she sang with the full power of her voice and gave a tragic impression. It is now some years since Mme. Nordica sang Marguerite here, and she has made a large advance in her art since then. She made her début in this city in the part, but she has grown from an old-fashioned opera singer into a great lyric actress. Her studies in Verdi and Wagner have shown her new lights in Gounod's works.

The other members of last night's cast were Mr. Alvarez as Faust, Mr. de Reszke is Mephistopheles, Mr. Campanari as Valnine and Miss Bridewell as Siebel. None of the men was in good voice. Mr. Mancinelli conducted.

MAY ROBSON'S STOCKINGS.

the Won't Wear That Pair Again-They Hurt a Revolutionary Daughter.

In the second act of "The Billionaire" at Daly's, May Robson has been wearing a pair of stockings which looked as if they were made out of an American flag. Miss Robson didn't wear the stockings at either of the performances yesterday and she says she will never wear them again. She alleges that she reached this deci-sion before the matines yesterday, after she had received the following blank by

she had received the following blank by mail:

May Robson:
Mapam: I can scarcely express my indignation at the wanton disregard of the sentiment of veneration for the American flax that should exist in the breast of every American, exhibited by you in one of your sostumes worn in 'The Billionaire.'

This is the first time in my life I have felt to incumbent upon me to personally resent the treasonable offence I, with hundreds of other Americans, have been compelled to endure in witnessing the American flag held up to ridicule, fashioned by you into a stage woman's stockings.

The facts that I am a Daughter of the Revolution, that my grandfather followed Old Glory in the Mexican War, that my husband was killed in the Civil War and that my son bathed with his blood the soil of Santiaso, could not, perhaps, appeal to a person of your frivolous mental equipment; but I die these instances in the hope that the sentiment that inspires these lines may lead some decent man in authority in the management of Daly's to bring you to a realizing sense of the degradation to which you are subjecting our flag and cause you to discontinue so heinous a practice, for which the law provides a penalty and which should be no less severe than that meted out to a common traitor in the time of war. Yours with contempt, with contempt, WARTH, WARRINGTON ALDEN.

MRS. FISKE PLAYS FOR CHARITY. Receives a Laurel Wreath, Too, at "Mary of Magdala's" 100th Performance.

Mrs. Fiske gave a special matinée of Mary of Magdala," at the Manhattan Theatre yesterday, for the benefit of Regina Angelorum, a Catholic home for working rirls maintained by Sisters of Charity. Two thousand dellars was realized. There were many Cathone priests and prominent Catholic laymen in the audience. Among the latter were W. R. Grace and Hugh J. Grant. "Mary of Magdala" reached its 100th performance in this city last night. Portraits of Mrs. Fiske were distributed as souvenirs. In honor of the event, Paul Heyse, who wrote the drama, sent the Heyse, who wrote the drama, sent the actress an immense laurel wreath.

WOULDN'T RESIGN UNDER FIRE. Jersey Assembly to Investigate a Scands

About Its Sergeant-at-Arms. TRENTON, Feb. 18.—The feature of to-day's on of the Legislature was the efforts made to secure the resignation of George P. Powell as sergeant-at-arms of the Assembly and the subsequent appointment of a committee to investigate Powell's connection with the proposition to return for $250 the vestments stolen from Grace Episcopal Church in Newark Gov. Murphy had two conferences this norning, one with Major Carl Lentz, the Republican county chairman of Essex county and the other with Attorney-General McCarter. All three were pronounced in the opinion that Powell should resign, and a suggestion to that effect was made to him. He refused to do it.

At a caucus of the Essex Assemblymen Powell repeated the explanations already made publicly by him that he was seeking to serve the Church in going to the pastor to serve the Church in going to the pastor with the statement that he had been approached by another person who could secure the return of the vestments for $250. Powell said that for him to resign would be a confession of guilt, when he had done nothing wrong.

The Republican Assemblymen had a caucus on the subject this afternoon, and immediately after the caucus Powell presented to the Assembly a petition asking that the investigating committee be appointed. Speaker Horner appointed as a committee Messrs. Avis, Gloucester; Colby, Essex; Elvins, Atlantic, Hillery, Morris, and Schumann, Hudson. The committee will meet in Chancery chambers in Newark on Saturday morning.

Gov. Murphy to-day sent to the Senate the name of Alfred Elmer Mills for Law Judge of Morris county, and the name of Charles Rathbun for Prosecutor of that county, also the name of R. Heber Breintnall to succeed himself as Adjutant-General of the State.

FORD ON FRANCHISE TAX LAW Says He Forcesw Trouble, but Corporations Got Ahead of Him. .

Ex-Senator John Ford delivered a lecture last night before the Brooklyn Democratic Club in their rooms, 201 Montague street, Brooklyn, on franchise taxation. He went into the details of his original bill for the taxation of all franchises.

"The Franchise Taxation law is to put all corporations holding public privileges on the same footing as any other realty holder," he said. "The same assessor who puts a tax on your property was to tax that of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company or the Metropolitan Railway. This was amended, however, and in the amendment the question of the unconstitutionality of the law lies, if it lies at stitutionality of the law lies, if it lies at all

"Gov. Roosevelt and his advisers put up the amendment creating a State board of assessors, which was to assess the franchises. It was believed then, and it is still believed, that only that portion of the law is unconstitutional and that it will not affect the whole law.

"Although I pointed out all these things at the time, I was will aware that I could do nothing if I attempted an amendment, because the corporations had got in their fine work while I was ill and they had Roosevelt behind them. I tell you this, however, that the law will not be repealed: nor will it be superseded except by a better one, for it is just, equitable and what the people want and should have.

This law will, when in full operation and properly administered, pay 10 per cent. of the taxes of this city and of the State, and it is, therefore, advisable that it be settled by the Court of Appeals as soon as possible. The street franchises of this city are worth at least $500,000,000 and ought Joseph Devlin, M. P., for North Kilkenny, who has come here to raise funds for the Irish Land League, address meeting of the Parnell branch of the United Irish League in the basement of St. Agnes's Church last night.

He said that the Compulsory Land Purchase act which Mr. Wyndham will introduce into the House of Commons at troduce into the House of Commons at this session is the result of the League's endeavors and will result in the transfer of the soil to the peasant farmer. He went on to prophesy that the organization which has accomplished this has power enough. if it perseveres, eventually to bring about the millen ium to which all Irishmen look forward, the government of Irishmen look forward, the government of Ireland by her own people.

A collection was taken up for the work of the League To this the Rev. Dr. Brann who presided at the meeting contributed $100.

Wednesday Cotillons Come to an End. The last of the Wednesday cotillons was given last night at Delmonico's and was largely attended and gay. These dances of the Southern set, which have been held for several years, are to be discontinued. A new subscription series, to be known as "The Century Dances" will be Philharmonic Discusses Subsidy Plan.

The Philharmonic Society held a special neeting yesterday in the room of the meeting yesterday in the room of the Aschenbroedel Verein and discussed the proposed annual subsidy offered by music lovers for the support of the orchestra. A committee, consisting of Anton Reiff, Augustus Roebbelen, Felix Leifels, Louis Schmit and Gustav Dannreuther, was appointed to confer with the oltisens committee about the plans.

Marie Dressler Goes Back to Vaudeville. Marie Dressler, the actress, who has been periously ill for several months, has fully recovered and is going back to work. She begins a week's engagement at the Orpheum in Brooklyn on Monday night. Manager Percy Williams will pay her $1,000 for the week. Miss Dressler has signed a fourteen-weeks' contract on the vaudeville circuit.

Stage Manager's Arrest a Mistake. Carl Herbert, representing Mrs. Patrick Campbell announces for her that the arrest of her stage manager in Toronto was an absurd blunder, that he has been released, and has resumed his place in Mrs. Camp-bell's company.

WON'T BE A "COCKNEY BISHOP"

DR. POTTER WOULD KEEP RU-RALITY IN HIS DIOCESE.

He Has a Plan of His Own for Dividing and Providing a Bishop-Would Make the Latter an Auxiliary Six Months in the Year, Leaving Him Free the Rest.

The committee of this Episcopal diocese named at the last convention to consider the matter of appointing a coadjutor to Bishop Potter, and the standing com-mittee on the readjustment of diocesan lines, have been conferring, and as a resuit, a letter of inquiry has been sent to all rectors and lay members of the diocesan convention, asking these questions:

without reference to the readjustment of other diocesen lines is the division of the existing diocese of New York, in your judgment, desirable in the near future? If so where would you draw the line between the diocese of New York and the new diocese to be formed out of the territory of the present one? From what source or sources ought the income for the maintenance of the episcopate in the new diocese to be derived? From what source or sources ought the funds for the missionary effort and church extension to be derived?

source or sources ought the funds for the missionary effort and church extension to be derived?

Bishop Potter has offered a solution, which he has sent to members of both committees. His solution is that he surrender, during his lifetime, the use of the episcopal residence soon to be built in the grounds of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, to the new Bishop, and guarantee to that official a salary of $7,500 a year, on condition that the new Bishop reside in this residence from December to June of each year, and take such work in the old diocese of New York as Bishop Potter shall assign to him, leaving him the other six months of the year to perform the labors of the new jurisdiction.

The Bishop asks that in the proposed division he be permitted to make suggestions about the line: that the dioceses of Albany and Central New York be permitted to cede some counties to the new jurisdiction if they so desire, and that wherever the line be drawn, the Bishop of New York be not restricted to the city only, and thus come to be what he terms a "cockney Bishop—that very prejudiced, unsympathetic and opinionated thing." Staten Island must be a part of the diocese of New York, but Bishop Potter, apparently, does not consider that rural.

Replies to the committee's questions have not yet come in, but inquiry made vesterday concerning them brought out criticism of their inadequate character and many anonymous expressions of opinion that Bishop Potter's plan is impracticable. It was said that the new Bishop would be neither one thing nor the other, coadjutor or diocesan, and the idea of turning the new Bishop loose to beg his own endowment, was undignified as well.

REFORMSTHAT HAVE BEEN MADE

Col. Monroe, Water Commissioner, and City Chamberlain Gould Tell the Acorns. Commissioner Robert Grier Monroe of the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity and City Chamberlain E. R. L. Gould made speeches last night at a meeting at 210 East Fifth street, held under the auspices of the Order of Acorns.

Col. Monroe gave an interesting descrip tion of the way in which the city gets the enormous amount of water it uses daily.

In speaking of the income of the city from its sale of water he asserted that in Man-hattan and The Bronx alone it was $6,000,000 last year, 10 per cent. more than ever before. The same rate of increase prevailed fore. The same rate of increase prevailed throughout the entire city, he said. It was due to collections from men who in the past have either stolen their water from the city or got it for nothing through favoritism. Continuing Col. Monroe said:

There has been a thorough reform in my department. The ordering of supplies is all done by open and competitive examination, and politicians banded together as supply companies are no longer able to monopolize the work and sell to the city whatever grade of stuff they want at a price fixed by themselves. I want to tell you, gentlemen, that no one benefits by a waste of the public money without the public, as a whole, suffering. To-day the city is getting more for its money than it ever got before. In my department alone many changes have been made and they will show in time. For one thing, we of the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity are thoroughly against graft in every form, and if any man is held up by an inspector for anything and gives it it is his own fault and that of no one else.

Dr. Gould said that his was not a spectacular job, but still he had found room for quite a few reforms in the City Chamberlain's office. For one thing he found that under the previous administration the trust funds, the money of poor people, had been lent to certain politicians on very uncertain security. One of the first things he did was to investigate all such security, and the result was that he called in many loans. Unfortunately, in some cases, he was unable to secure the entire amounts, and the poor had to suffer. He mentioned a case where the security for a $3,000 loan to a politician brought back only about $190. throughout the entire city, he said. It of the United States District Court summoned Capt. Charles M. Thomas, commander of the receiving ship Franklin, before him this morning to answer why an order of the court, issued in Richmon had not been complied with. The case was that of Chester A. Winnie of Green Island, N. Y., who had been released from the receiving ship on a writ of habeas corpus, but had been retained on board despite the order when he returned for his clothes. The boy's father applied to the court in Richmond on the plea that he was a minor and that his mother was in great distress because of the enlistment and absence of the boy who was on a lark with five other boys when they joined the navy. The court signed the order of release on Feb. 7 and was much astonished when notified this morning that it had been ignored. He sent a deputy marshall to bring Capt. Thomas into court.

Capt. Thomas explained to the court that he had intended to take an appeal in the case and had so notified the United States Attorney. In addition, Capt. Thomas said he had received no official notice of Judge Waddill's order. The court accepted the explanation and at the same time directed immediate compliance with it. The boy will get his discharge. and that his mother was in great distress

TICKLES THE MAYOR.

Let 'Em Guess, Says He, About the Mayor Who Should Get a Four-Year Term. Mayor Low seemed to be tickled yesterday when informed that the clause in his message in which he advocated a four-year term for the Mayor after Jana rour-year term for the analysis act vani-uary, 1906, had stirred up the politicians to speculation as to whether it meant a confession of Tammany victory next fall or that he expected his own renomination in 1908.

"I decline to remove such an interesting matter for conjecture from the field of speculation," said the Mayor with a smile.

E. H. Gary's Gift to a Law School. CRICAGO, Feb. 18 .- Elbert H. Gary has made a gift to the Northwestern University law school of the complete series of re-ports of decisions of the Supreme Courts of the chief European countries, including of the chief European countries, including Germany, France, Belgium, Holland, Spain, Italy, Austria and Switzerland. It includes also the various codes of those countries and the chief law journals. To these will be added the similar series of Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Russia, Hungary and the Balkan States.

LIVE TOPICS ABOUT TOWN.

The announcement that the Earl of Yarmouth is to marry an American girl will explain his presence in New York, to many persons who have wondered what pleasure this solitary young man could find in wan dering alone about the city. He sat in restaurants and theatres, almost pathetically deserted, and wherever he was seen, whether it was walking on Fifth avenue or wandering through the corridors at the or wandering through the corridors at the opera house, he had only the companionship of his own thoughts. No titled foreigner in the second or third year of his sojourn here was ever more deserted. It was plain that he must have some absorbing motive to bring him from his own country to a city in which all social pleasures in the usual sense of the word were denied to him. His name appeared on the list of only one great ball this year. But the successful outcome of his suit explains the Earl's willingness to spend so much time alone so long as there was a prospect of success in the end. Miss Thaw, to whom he has become engaged, is already wealthy in her become engaged, is already wealthy in her own right and is destined to receive a still larger fortune from her mother's estate.

conflict between M. Alvarez and Mme. Gadski as to the most appropriate dis-tribution of dressing rooms at the Opera of the Maurice Grau Opera Company of Jules Judels. Judels is young, but he has spent eleven years in the service of his former employers. He was once the Cerebus who guarded Mr. Grau's door, but he rose gradually to the commanding post of callboy. Now the singers will have to struggle along without another. The callboy resigned under the reproaches that followed Mme. Gadski's refusal to sing unless she got into her own dressing room. They were too strong. He had earned more respectful treatment. He once passed so far out of the callboy class as to sing a rôle of two or three phrases in "Messaline." So he could understand the troubles of artists, although he could not be upbraided for them too strenuously. of the Maurice Grau Opera Company of

The enterprising owners of the billcollecting wagon which goes through the Brooklyn streets boldly proclaiming its purpose had a predecessor several years ago in New York. The predecessor employed a number of determined-looking nen, who seemed to have been in some degree selected with the idea of frightening delinquent debtors into settlement by their physical appearance. And over the top of every man's black derby hat was a shield, on which was printed the address of the collection agency, under the words, in large black letters on the red back-ground. "Desperate Claims Collected." round. "Desperate Claims Collected."
This heroic means of securing the payment of bills may have been a wonderful success while it lasted. But that was not for long. One exasperated victim had the dogged collector with his red hat arrested and the illegality of the company's methods was so definitely established that it went out of business.

About the dry goods store windows, in which the dresses to be fashionable in the spring and summer are now on view, there are more men than women at one particu-lar time of the day. Just at the noon hour, for every woman who feasts her eyes upon the gowns there are four or five men. They do not look like possi-ble purchasers. Their clothes are shiny They do not look like possiand their hats are in the style which rules on the Bowery rather than on Broad-way. But they examine the glittering dis-play in the windows with a minute attention very different from the casual admiring glance of the woman shopper passing

For fifteen or twenty minutes these men will gaze upon a dress, exchanging comments meanwhile in Yiddish and German, before turning to the next. The men are working tailors from the shops in stitching and embroidery with a view to imitation when work of the same sort is needed.

Even the restaurants have at last been smitten by the hygienic craze. The barbers long ago began to be worried about sanitation and germs and such things, and the Board of Health harries the butchers and the bakers. But one of the most corgeous of the lobster and Welsh rabbit gorgeous of the lobser and welsh rabbit places of entertainment now has the germ-destroying habit and has it badly. Among other innovations it has introduced antiseptic toothpicks. They are the old familiar kind, but each is in a separate wrapper and the point of each has been treated with a presumably in some substance which, presumably, germ-destroying.

A neat method of exchanging benefits in advertising has been devised by a down-town firm. It is simple and it certainly seemed satisfactory. The articles in which the concern deal are useful but hardly attractive, and for all that the firm has to keep them in the public mind or the public would be sure to get along without them. would be sure to get along without them. So anything that draws attention to the concern's show windows is welcome there. A few days ago it afforded hospitality to a large branch of an orange tree with the specimens of the ripe fruit still clinging to it. A notice attached announced that this was contributed by Blank, the celebrated fruit dealer, from his own particular orange groves.

There was nothing wonderful about the exhibit and the cost was infinites mal. But the contrast of the ripe fruit amid the green leaves drew crowds to the windows to see growing oranges and incidentally to look over the proprietor's stock in trade to look over the proprietor's stock in trade.

SPOONING IN A SCHOOL CAR. Some Erasmus High School Boys and Girls

Warned for Friskiness. Erasmus Hall High School pupils who ride in the West End special school car have been warned by Dr. Walter B. Gunnion, the principal, that girls must not sit on the knees of the boys on their journeys o and from school. The trolley car conductors and some of the pupils had complained to the school authorities.

Dr. Gunnison called the boys and girls who ride on the car to his private office. What he said could not be learned, but one girl who heard the lecture on behavior said:

"Doc has it right, and we will catch it

if anything goes wrong again. They do carry on dreadfully. Why, the girls sit on the boys' laps and fool and carry on, and some of the boys have kissed us, too. Of course, some of the girls don't like it—they are the mean things who told about it.

Dr. Gunnison has anyoined a committee

they are the mean things who told about it."

Dr. Gunnison has appointed a committee of three of the girls to report on the conduct of their companions.

"Some time ago," said Dr. Gunnison last night, "I called some of the pupils who ride on that car to my office and cautioned them. I know I have no jurisdiction over their actions outside of school, but I feel certain that their parents will uphold me in trying to prevent such foolishness."
